STI Appoints New Chief Operating Officer

Fort Wayne, Indiana – Dick Omlor has been named chief operating officer of STI, a specialized transportation company. He brings more than 40 years of transportation and logistics management expertise to STI. Dick will be responsible for the operating divisions of truckload, network operations, transportation management, homeExpress, project logistics, and the Six Sigma and claims teams.

“Dick was contracted in August of 2007 to assist with improving the profitability of the network operations,” said Rob Shearer, president and CEO of STI. “His commitment to this project showed his experience and leadership in helping STI achieve its goals.”

“Dick brings a wealth of knowledge and practical operational management experience to this position,” says Shearer. “His strong leadership experience coupled with his P&L accountability, strategy and product development, and winning attitude will greatly enhance our team.”

Most recently Omlor served as vice president of agent compliance with SIRVA. During his tenure with SIRVA and North American Van Lines Omlor was held of variety of general management and executive management positions in operations.

Omlor holds a bachelor degree in business administration from Ball State University and lives in Fort Wayne with his wife, Katherine.
